BATC-ENVIROWAY PARTNERSHIP AGREEMENT

It was a pleasure to attend the BATC-EnviroWay Partnership Agreement Ceremony last week.

On behalf of Don McMorris, Minister Responsible for First Nations, Métis and Northern Affairs and the Government of Saskatchewan, I had the opportunity to thank both the Battlefords Agency Tribal Chiefs and EnviroWay for bringing us together for this ceremony.

We celebrated the shared commitment of BATC and EnviroWay to an environmentally and economically sustainable business model and a partnership that helps build a better future for Saskatchewan communities.

This includes stewardship of our land and water and improving our environmental impact fundamental to EnviroWay. The celebration is a made-in-Saskatchewan example of economic partnership and economic reconciliation.

In closing, I expressed my sincere gratitude to both BATC and EnviroWay for recognizing the power of collaboration and the potential of working hand in hand to achieve common goals.

FISHING? BE SURE TO KNOW THE TYPES OF BAIT YOU CAN USE

When fishing in Saskatchewan be sure you know the types of bait you can use.

There are a few rules and regulations you should be aware of including:

-  Live fish may not be used as bait.
-  Only dead baitfish that's been commercially frozen or preserved may be used.
-  Only leeches originating within Saskatchewan may be used as live bait.
-  Frogs, salamanders and crayfish may not be used as bait.

For more information about bait regulations, visit saskatchewan.ca/fishing

CROP REPORT FOR THE PERIOD OF AUGUST 8 - AUGUST 14, 2023

Scattered showers across the province paused harvest for a short time, but producers welcomed the moisture. Saskatchewan crops are nine per cent harvested this week, ahead of the five-year average of eight per cent and the 10-year average of five per cent.

A complete, printable version of the Crop Report is available online. Download Crop Report: <https://www.saskatchewan.ca/crop-report>

GET YOUR DUCKS IN A ROW BEFORE HUNTING SEASON BEGINS

Hunting Season is almost here!

For a comprehensive list of season dates, regulations, fees, licenses and other hunting information visit saskatchewan.ca/hunting.

Hunting season is approaching, and the Ministry of Environment is reminding hunters that now is the time to plan and prepare.

Saskatchewan Hunters and Trappers Guide

Season start dates vary depending on the wildlife management zone, hunting method and game species. The Saskatchewan Hunters and Trappers Guide includes a comprehensive list of season dates that all hunters should know.

The guide also includes important information on hunting and trapping regulations, licences and fees, and highlights of what is new for 2023 - including new wolf hunting opportunities.

Visit saskatchewan.ca/hunting to download a copy of the guide.

Printed copies of the Saskatchewan Hunters and Trappers Guide are available at Ministry of Environment field offices with front counter service, licence issuers, conservation field offices and some provincial parks.

Hunting licences

Big Game Draw licences are available for purchase as of August 1. Regular licences are available beginning August 15.

Hunters have a few options to purchase a licence:

- Online through the Hunting, Angling and Trapping Licence (HAL) system, any time of the day.
- In person from any Saskatchewan hunting licence issuer.
- In person at a Ministry of Environment office with front counter service or at select provincial park offices.
- By phone at 1-855-848-4773 (you will require a credit card).

Hunters must provide their HAL identification number, or any other identification number previously added to their HAL account.

Permission to hunt on private lands

Approximately 85 per cent of the land in southern Saskatchewan is privately owned or controlled. Hunters are legally required to obtain consent from the landowner or occupant prior to hunting:

- Consent can be provided in writing, orally or through signage.
- Consent can be sought and provided by any method including in person, by telephone and through email.

On the website

The Government of Saskatchewan website has useful information that will inform every step of planning a hunting trip, including:

- The 2022 Hunter Harvest Survey results (as well as results from previous years).
- The 2022-23 CWD Surveillance Program results (summary and map), along with other information about CWD testing
- All the relevant guides and supplements posted in the Publications Centre.

Saskatchewan!

You got so excited that you caught some fish that you forgot the rules for transporting them. We're here to help!

Leave a small (2.5 cm) patch of skin and scales so the species can be easily identified.

Here are some of the ways you can transport fish:

- Whole: leave the head and tail intact;
- Headless: remove the head and entrails; or
- Fillets: include at least 2.5 cm of skin and scale intact; limit of two fillets per package.

Packaging helps conservation officers ensure anglers stay within their limits.

For more info, see saskatchewan.ca/fishing and go to Anglers Extras.

SASKATCHEWAN HOUSING STARTS SOAR

Saskatchewan's economy continues to thrive as Statistics Canada numbers released today show the value of housing starts increasing 50.7 per cent from July 2022 to July 2023. This is the second highest growth in the nation, when compared to other provinces.

"When you look at Saskatchewan, you see a robust economy that inspires people from around the world to call our province home in record numbers," Minister of Trade and Export Development Jeremy Harrison said. "These numbers are further proof that Saskatchewan remains the best place to live, work and raise a family."

TIPS TO KEEP YOU AND YOUR FAMILY SAFE

Making a turn? Make sure it's into the first available driving lane. A good tip is to end your turn in the lane that corresponds to the lane you turned from.

Taking a wide turn into the wrong lane creates unpredictable action for other drivers and increases your chances of being involved in a collision.
