SEVERAL UPDATES IN THE LEGISLATIVE REPORT

The fall sitting of the Legislature is now complete and our government was able to move forward on several efforts to build and protect Saskatchewan's families, economy, industries and interests.

Saskatchewan is growing at its fastest pace in more than a century, and our government is committed to building and protecting it for generations to come. With nation-leading economic growth, strong job creation and maintaining our reputation as the most affordable place to live in Canada, Saskatchewan is showing no signs of slowing down.

During this fall sitting, the Legislative Assembly unanimously passed The SaskEnergy (Carbon Tax Fairness for Families) Amendment Act. This legislation builds on our government's previous announcement that SaskEnergy will stop collecting the carbon tax on natural gas bills for residential customers. To ensure fairness for families, our government also recently announced SaskPower will stop collecting the federal carbon tax on electrical home heating.

These decisions come in response to the federal government's removal of the carbon tax from home heating oil earlier this fall. Our government's policies will help protect Saskatchewan families from the harmful impacts of the federal government's unfair and unaffordable carbon tax. While we continue to call on the federal government to remove the carbon tax on everything for everyone, Saskatchewan now have measures in place to ensure affordability for families to heat their homes this winter.

To further assist families with affordability, a new employment incentive introduced by our government will make life more affordable for working families with low incomes. To assist with the affordability and availability of housing, a new Provincial Sales Tax Rebate for New Home Construction and Secondary Suite Incentive were created. These programs will provide up to 42 per cent of PST paid on a newly constructed home, and 35 per cent of the cost to build a secondary suite within the owners' primary residence.

During this session, our government also focused on assisting Saskatchewan's most vulnerable. A new provincial approach to homelessness will create 155 new supportive housing spaces, 120 new permanent emergency shelter spaces, and 30 new complex needs emergency shelter spaces. Five hundred new addictions treatment spaces, along with a new central intake system, were allocated to help those struggling with addictions to be able to access treatment.

In our health care system, significant progress is being made to address staffing challenges and ensure people have access to the health care they need. The Saskatchewan Health Authority has hired 877 new nursing graduates since December 2022 and nearly 80 applications have been approved for the enhanced Rural Physician Incentive Program. From April 1 to September 30, Saskatchewan's surgical system performed 47,748 procedures, the most ever recorded for the first six months of the year. To ensure patients have access to urgent breast cancer diagnostic procedures, while ongoing work continues to improve current service levels closer to home, patients on an urgent wait list will now be able to receive procedures out-of-province at a private medical facility in Calgary.

Our government continues to support students pursuing careers in health care with several programs and initiatives. The Student Loan Forgiveness Program for Nurses and Nurse Practitioners for rural and remote communities is being expanded to five additional mid-sized communities to help retain graduates to stay and work in Saskatchewan, and a new physician assistant training program was announced to train physician assistants. These investments in our health care system are key to not only strengthening the system, but also ensuring that Saskatchewan people can receive the care they need.

In education, a new Provincial Education Plan was released to guide the sector's work. Mandatory holocaust education was announced and will become a provincial graduation requirement. A new K-12 school was opened in Blaine Lake, a new joint-use school was opened in Regina, and ground was officially broken on another new joint-use school in Regina, as well as several other ongoing renovations and new school projects across the province.

These investments are made possible by our strong and growing provincial economy.

Saskatchewan has recently seen nation-leading GDP growth of 6.0 per cent, retail trade up 3.0 per cent year-over-year, the second-lowest unemployment rate in the nation at 5.1 per cent, and an increase of 19,300 jobs over last year. Mining world leader BHP recently announced a $6.4 billion investment in stage two of the Jansen potash project; with a total investment of nearly $15 billion, this project is the largest private sector investment in Saskatchewan's history.

To maintain this momentum, Premier Scott Moe has led a delegation to the Council of Parties COP28 conference in Dubai. Joined by over 55 companies and organizations, the delegation is sharing Saskatchewan's story on sustainability, innovations in environmental stewardship, and most importantly, how Saskatchewan has the food, fuel, fertilizer, and critical minerals to supply a growing world.

With the fall session now complete, I will be back at events and gatherings in the constituency and look forward to connecting with constituents. As always, if you have any questions, comments or concerns, you are welcome to reach out to my constituency office at ken.cheveldayoff.mla@sasktel.net or call 306.651.7100.

GOVERNMENT CONTINUES BUILDING AND PROTECTING A STRONG PROVINCE AS FALL LEGISLATIVE SITTING CONCLUDES

Multiple Government Priorities Receive Unanimous Support of Assembly

Thursday, December 7th marked the conclusion of the Fall Sitting of the Fourth Session of the Twenty-Ninth Legislature, and the Government of Saskatchewan is highlighting its recent efforts to build and protect Saskatchewan's families, economy, industries and interests.

"Saskatchewan is growing at its fastest pace in more than a century, and our government is here to build and protect our province for generations to come," Deputy Premier Donna Harpauer said on behalf of Premier Scott Moe. "With nation-leading economic growth, strong job creation and maintaining our reputation as the most affordable place to live in Canada, Saskatchewan is showing no signs of slowing down."

During this sitting, the Assembly unanimously passed several pieces of legislation including:

- Bill 151: The SaskEnergy (Carbon Tax Fairness for Families) Amendment Act, this legislation builds on the government's announcement that SaskEnergy will stop collecting the carbon tax on residential customers' natural gas bills.
- Bill 139: The Saskatchewan Remembrance Observance Act, this legislation protects a workers' right to wear a poppy in the workplace.
- Bill 147: The Tobacco and Vapour Products Control Amendment Act, 2023, this legislation strengthens provisions to protect youth from smoking and vaping.

In addition to its legislative agenda, government also announced fairness for families who heat their homes with electricity by directing SaskPower to stop collecting the carbon tax on electric home heating bills. Saskatchewan will continue to push the federal government to remove the carbon tax from all forms of home heating. The province also responded to the federal government's unaffordable, unconstitutional and unattainable Clean Electricity Regulations by making it the very first item to be scrutinized by the Saskatchewan First Tribunal to assess economic harm on the regulations that would see power rates for customers double by 2035.

"Saskatchewan has taken considerable steps to protect families from the harmful impacts of the federal government's unfair and unaffordable carbon tax," Crown Investments Corporation Minister Dustin Duncan said. "While we continue to call on the federal government to remove the carbon tax on everything for everyone, Saskatchewan now has measures in place to ensure affordability for families to heat their homes this winter."

The government also focused on several key initiatives to assist Saskatchewan's most vulnerable. A new provincial approach to homelessness will create 155 new supportive housing spaces, 120 new permanent emergency shelter spaces, and 30 new complex needs emergency shelter spaces. A new employment incentive will make life more affordable for working families with low incomes through financial benefits, supplementary benefits, connections to employment and housing supports. Five hundred new addictions treatment spaces, along with a new central intake system, were allocated to help those struggling with addictions to be able to access treatment. As well, free, rapid access counselling services for children and youth are expanding across the province, with more services now in Regina, Saskatoon, Weyburn, Estevan, Carlyle, Oxbow, North Battleford, Yorkton, Prince Albert, Moose Jaw, Humboldt, Kindersley, Leader, Unity, Rosetown and Swift Current.

"Our government is making significant investments to support those in greatest need," Social Services Minister Gene Makowsky said. "This includes building and protecting people and public safety with strong supports for low-income individuals and families, children and youth in care, as well as those experiencing homelessness and living with complex needs."

To assist Saskatchewan families with the affordability and availability of housing, a new Provincial Sales Tax Rebate for New Home Construction and Secondary Suite Incentive were created. These programs will provide up to 42 per cent of PST paid on a newly constructed home, and 35 per cent of the cost to build a secondary suite within the owners' primary residence.

In Health, significant progress is being made to address staffing challenges and to ensure people have access to the health care they need. The Saskatchewan Health Authority has hired 877 new nursing graduates since December 2022 and nearly 80 applications have been approved for the enhanced Rural Physician Incentive Program. From April 1 to September 30, Saskatchewan's surgical system performed 47,748 procedures, the most ever recorded for the first six months of the year. To ensure patients have access to urgent breast cancer diagnostic procedures, while ongoing work continues to improve current service levels closer to home, patients on an urgent wait list will now be able to receive procedures out-of-province at a private medical facility in Calgary. The Student Loan Forgiveness Program for Nurses and Nurse Practitioners for rural and remote communities is being expanded to five additional mid-sized communities to help retain graduates to stay and work in Saskatchewan, and a new physician assistant training program was announced to train physician assistants right here in Saskatchewan to provide enhanced care and strengthen the health system.

In Education, a new Provincial Education Plan was released to guide the sector's work, mandatory holocaust education was announced, a new K-12 school was opened in Blaine Lake, a new joint-use school was opened in Regina at Argyle and St. Pius X, and ground was officially broken on a new joint-use school in north Regina.

Saskatchewan continues its strong economic growth with nation leading GDP of 6.0 per cent, retail trade up 3.0 per cent year-over-year, the second-lowest provincial unemployment rate of 5.1 per cent, and an increase of 19,300 jobs when compared to last year. In late October, mining world leader BHP announced a $6.4 billion investment in stage two of the Jansen potash project. This project is the largest private sector investment in Saskatchewan's history and is expected to create over 2,000 construction jobs and 900 full-time positions once production starts.

To maintain this momentum, Premier Scott Moe led a delegation to the Council of Parties COP28 conference to Dubai in the United Arab Emirates in early December. Joined by over 55 companies and organizations, the delegation shared Saskatchewan's story on sustainability, innovations in environmental stewardship, and most importantly, how Saskatchewan has the food, fuel, fertilizer and critical minerals to supply a growing world.

SASKATCHEWAN BUILDING PERMIT GROWTH CONTINUES TO LEAD THE NATION

Saskatchewan Leads This Month With 45.6 Per Cent in Year-Over-Year Growth

Statistics Canada released October 2023 numbers on the value of building permits, with Saskatchewan jumping 45.6 per cent compared to October 2022 (seasonally adjusted). Saskatchewan ranked second among provinces.

The total value of building permits in Saskatchewan was $204 million in October 2023.

"Saskatchewan's economy continues to grow and thrive, and these numbers are proof of that," Trade and Export Development Minister Jeremy Harrison said. "These figures show that over any province in the country, Saskatchewan is the place of choice to build and invest."

RENAMING OF THE QUEEN ELIZABETH II SCHOLARSHIPS

The Government of Saskatchewan is pleased to continue recognizing exceptionally promising graduate and post-graduate students in our post-secondary institutions through the new Saskatchewan Lieutenant Governor Scholarship and the Saskatchewan Lieutenant Governor Indigenous Scholarship.

These annual scholarships have been renamed due to the passing of Her Majesty The Queen. They will continue to provide recipients with $20,000 to be used toward expenses that help them achieve their academic goals.

"This scholarship has provided both encouragement and financial assistance to talented students, and I am grateful to the Government of Saskatchewan for carrying on this helpful program," Lieutenant Governor Russ Mirasty said. "I believe strongly in the value of education and the impact of our universities and academic scholars. It is an honour to have this scholarship named in connection with the Vice-Regal Office."

HUNTING SEASON REMINDER: SUBMIT SAMPLES FOR CWD TESTING

Chronic wasting disease (CWD) testing drop-off locations are open for another year, and the Ministry of Environment is asking hunters to submit deer, moose and elk samples.

While samples can be submitted from animals harvested anywhere in the province, samples from wildlife management zones 2W, 9, 10, 37, 47, 50 and 55 are of particular interest.

"Since the province began monitoring more than 25 years ago, we have seen the spread and prevalence of chronic wasting disease increase," Environment Minister Christine Tell said. "We rely on hunters submitting samples for testing so we can continue to measure and manage CWD, and we are grateful to their ongoing support in those efforts."

INTERPROVINCIAL AGREEMENTS GIVE SASKATCHEWAN STUDENTS MORE TRAINING OPTIONS

Saskatchewan students have more opportunities to access specialized training in high-demand health sciences programs through new and updated interprovincial agreements. This year, the Government of Saskatchewan is investing $5 million to reserve up to 149 seats in nine programs offered outside the province.

"Our government is committed to ensuring we have skilled health professionals in place to provide essential health services for patients across the province," Advanced Education Minister Gordon Wyant said. "These agreements allow Saskatchewan students to complete their clinical placements here at home, connecting students to jobs in the province and helping meet critical health care system needs."

Build and Protect

On December 4, 2023, the Legislative Assembly of Saskatchewan unanimously passed The SaskEnergy (Carbon Tax Fairness for Families) Amendment Act.

"These legislative amendments will give our government, and me as minister, the sole authority and responsibility for decisions regarding the collection and remittance of the federal carbon tax on SaskEnergy bills while also providing protection for SaskEnergy employees and board members," Minister Responsible for SaskEnergy Dustin Duncan said. "The passage of this legislation will enable our government to protect Saskatchewan families' ability to afford to heat their homes this winter by removing the federal carbon tax from the natural gas bills of residential customers."

“Continuing the Rural and Remote Recruitment Incentive program supports the success we are seeing under our Health Human Resources Action Plan.”

NEW AFFORDABLE HOUSING UNITS OPEN IN SASKATOON TO SUPPORT YOUTH TRANSITIONING FROM CARE

Saskatoon youth in care have improved access to affordable housing as they transition to independence through a $1.5 million total joint investment from the federal government, the Government of Saskatchewan and the City of Saskatoon.

Sean Fraser, Minister of Housing, Infrastructure and Communities, alongside Social Services Minister and Minister Responsible for Saskatchewan Housing Corporation Gene Makowsky announced the opening of eight units of affordable housing for youth transitioning from Ministry of Social Services care to independence in Saskatoon.

The project provides transitional housing to 10 youths through the Ministry of Social Services Child and Family Programs Semi-Independent Living Program (SILP). The program provides the youth with mentorship and supports pertaining to harm reduction, family relationships, housing, education and employment.

PROVINCE INVESTS $1.2 MILLION TO SUPPORT SURVIVORS OF HUMAN TRAFFICKING

We are providing $1.2 million in funding over four years to Hope Restored Canada through the federal National Action Plan to End Gender-Based Violence, which will provide housing and support to women and youth who are escaping human trafficking and sexual exploitation in Saskatchewan.

Hope Restored Safe House Helps Women and Youth Rebuild Their Lives

The Government of Saskatchewan is investing $1.2 million over the next four years in Hope Restored Canada (HRC), in collaboration with the National Action Plan to End Gender-Based Violence, to deliver housing and support services for human trafficking victims.

This investment will secure more housing, counselling, treatment and life skills programming at HRC Saskatoon. Since 2019, it has operated the only safe house in Saskatchewan with specialized services, which have securely supported over 55 women and youth escaping sex trafficking and sexual exploitation.

"This investment is about healing and rebuilding lives," Justice Minister and Attorney General Bronwyn Eyre said. "Our partnership with Hope Restored Canada is part of the Government of Saskatchewan's ongoing work to support victims who have experienced physical, psychological and emotional trauma."
