W. THOMAS MOLLOY BECOMES PROVINCE'S 22ND
LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

W. Thomas Molloy was officially installed as the 22nd Lieutenant Governor of Saskatchewan March 21st.

Molloy swore his oath of office before Chief Justice Robert G. Richards during a ceremony in the Legislative Chamber. He was then proclaimed Lieutenant Governor by Premier Scott Moe.

“Saskatchewan’s Lieutenant Governors have always exemplified service to our people,” Moe said. “Looking at the impact of Thomas’ life work to our province, our nation, and more specifically to Indigenous peoples across our country, I am confident he will continue with that tradition. On behalf of the Government of Saskatchewan, I offer him my sincere congratulations and welcome him to this role.”

The installation ceremony was followed by the inspection of a military honour guard by the Lieutenant Governor, a 15 gun salute, fired by 10 Field Regiment of 38 Canadian Brigade Group, as well as a fly by from 15 Wing Moose Jaw.

As Lieutenant Governor, Molloy is the personal representative of Her Majesty the Queen of Canada in the province, and is responsible for granting Royal Assent to provincial laws, as well as summoning and dissolving the provincial legislature.

Under the Canadian Constitution, lieutenant governors are appointed by the federal government for a minimum of five years; however, there is no fixed term of office.

PREMIER SCOTT MOE OFF TO A STRONG START!

Our new Premier is off to a strong start. A new Angus Reid poll shows Scott Moe is the most popular Premier in Canada!

ANOTHER ALL-TIME POPULATION RECORD

Population was estimated to be 1,169,752 as of January 1, 2018, up 13,410 people from January 2017, another all-time record.

There were 1,695 more people living in Saskatchewan in the fourth quarter of 2017, continuing the trend of population increases. Between October 1, 2017 and January 1, 2018, international migration was up by 2,272. Natural increases (births over deaths) were up 1,203 over this period.

“This is the 47th consecutive quarter that Saskatchewan has had a quarterly population increase,” Immigration and Career Training Minister Jeremy Harrison said. “There is a correlation between the abundance of job and business opportunities in Saskatchewan and people making the decision to settle here.”

International migration was up 14,836, and natural increases were up 6,033 over the year.

“Record population numbers are good news for our economy,” Harrison said. “It shows we are a destination of choice, especially for international migration, which helps meet some of the needs of our labour market.”

Investing in the Early Years

The Government of Canada is investing over $41M in Saskatchewan's Early Years over the next three years

- $20M to develop 2,450 new affordable licensed child care spaces
- $12M to pilot early learning opportunities for children requiring intensive supports
- $8M to provide training, new equipment grants and literacy programming to improve the quality of child care

The Governments of Canada and Saskatchewan are making significant investments in early learning and child care systems to help children be safe and healthy and develop to their full potential in strong families and supportive communities.

Ralph Goodale, Minister of Public Safety and Emergency Preparedness, on behalf of Jean-Yves Duclos, Minister of Families, Children and Social Development, and Education Minister Gordon Wyant, announced a three-year bilateral agreement that reaffirms their commitment to and support of the unique early learning and child care needs of Saskatchewan families, such as increasing demand for affordable and quality child care spaces, and opportunities for children with disabilities, newcomers to Canada and Francophone families.

“Nurturing a child’s potential starts in the earliest years of their life,” Wyant said. “When children have quality early learning experiences, they develop a foundation for education, leading to more success in school and far beyond. Today’s investment in early learning and child care will support our ongoing work to see every child in our province get the start in life they deserve. I look forward to seeing these investments make a difference in the lives of Saskatchewan children and their families.”

PROVINCIAL FUNDING PROVIDED TO ADDRESS GLOBAL FOOD SECURITY

Research to tackle global food security received a major boost in the province today, as the Government of Saskatchewan announced $800,000 in funding for state-of-the-art equipment in a new Roots of Food Security research facility at the University of Saskatchewan (U of S).

The money will be provided by Innovation Saskatchewan, through its Innovation and Science Fund. The facility, located on the U of S campus, supports the school’s Canada Excellence Research Chair (CERC) in Food Systems and Security research program.

The program is led by internationally recognized plant scientist Leon Kochian, a faculty member in plant and soil science at the U of S College of Agriculture and BioResources. Kochian is also Associate Director of the Global Institute for Food Security, established in 2012 by PotashCorp (now Nutrien), the Government of Saskatchewan and the U of S.

“Saskatchewan has a proud legacy of ground-breaking research, discovery and leadership in plant science, and innovation,” Minister Responsible for Innovation Saskatchewan Tina Beaudry-Mellor said. “This investment will help us push the boundaries of science even further, and will provide knowledge that will make a valuable contribution to global food security.”

REPORT FROM THE LEGISLATURE

There is new leadership in the legislature but the first few weeks of the Spring Sitting have revealed that some things never change.

At a time when our government is on track to balance the budget, the new leader of the NDP has put forward a new $2.5 billion platform. Not only has the NDP endorsed a plan that would add $2.5 billion in new spending every year, they have yet to unveil a realistic way to pay for their promises.

It is possible but unlikely that the NDP carbon tax plan for Saskatchewan could cover this kind of reckless spending.

The NDP's new leader has described our fight against the Trudeau carbon tax as a "costly and pointless crusade." What is "costly and pointless" is a carbon tax that will hurt the industries that drive our economy and make it harder to make ends meet while doing nothing to reduce global emissions.

Your Saskatchewan Party government won't wave the white flag and let Justin Trudeau, Ryan Meili, or anyone else force their costly carbon tax plans on our province. Our government will stand with Saskatchewan people, defend Saskatchewan's interests and fight the carbon tax.

Meanwhile our government remains actively engaged and is working with the federal government to resolve issues like the grain backlog – a major concern for all of Saskatchewan. The approval of the Trans Mountain Pipeline is a step toward reducing the amount of oil transported by rail, freeing up needed space for grain. We support the Alberta government's threat to turn off the taps to B.C. in an effort to overcome that government's delay tactics on the project.

A strong export-based economy requires strong trade relationships. India's High Commissioner to Canada recently visited our province, providing an opportunity for us to promote our top industries. Saskatchewan's trade with India has nearly doubled in the past decade. Maintaining a respectful and mutually beneficial relationship is important to allowing trade to continue to grow.

Additionally, our government has also offered the Prime Minister assistance to ensure our trading relationship with the United States remain strong. While the provincial and federal governments don't agree on everything, trade is a front where a united Canada is stronger than a divided one, especially with uncertainty over the renegotiation or cancellation of the North American Free Trade Agreement.

The continued focus on these important issues has allowed Saskatchewan to experience so much positive growth in the past and will carry us into the future. RBC's Economic Outlook has upgraded Saskatchewan's growth forecast to 2.9% this year, the highest of any province in Canada.

While the leadership in the legislature has changed, the choice remains clear: our government's strong leadership, strong record of economic growth and our commitment to stand up and defend Saskatchewan's interests or the NDP's weak leadership, weak record on the economy and out-of-control spending.
